SLOGAN TO BE "TRY COURTESY"

Dept. of Highways Launches Campaign To Reduce Motor Car Accidents.

As many as 10 Ontario citizens, who today are joyfully making plans for holidays, will be stretched out on slabs in morgues throughout the province during the coming week, unless motorists make a definite effort to reduce the normal toll of fatal accidents for the Dominion Day week, says the startling prediction made just prior to Dominion Day by Honorable T. R. McQueen, Ontario Minister of Highways, in announcing that his department had launched a province-wide campaign of newspaper advertising to draw to the attention of Ontario motorists the necessity for showing each other more consideration.

This educational advertising campaign Mr. McQueen said would centre around the slogan "Try Courtesy". He hoped that every citizen would study the advertisements as they appeared in the Ontario press, and would draw them to the attention of their friends.

Last year between June 26 and July 4 there were 218 motor accidents in Ontario and nine people were killed, Mr. McQueen said. These figures had been only averages for that period, and there was therefore good reason to suppose that 9 or 10 Ontario citizens—now alive—would be dead a week hence, unless every driver on the road made a definite effort to reduce accidents.

Most drivers obeyed the law, Mr. McQueen admitted; but merely adhering to the letter of legal rights and obligation did not constitute a sufficient contribution by the individual motorists, he claimed.

"A blind insistence upon all the privileges of the law is only too often the cause of the accident, as when one driver insists upon asserting his right of way in a doubtful situation," Mr. McQueen warned.

"Improper use of the highways does not mean only wild, drunken or reckless driving," he went on. "It means also the negligent, indifferent, thoughtless and discourteous actions of the normally law-abiding majority."

"This latter category presents a problem of another sort. Inattention, lack of courtesy, or other faulty habits may be quite as dangerous under certain circumstances as the foolhardy tricks of the most irresponsible individual. Records show that more than 80 per cent of the drivers involved in accidents have never before been involved, so it is evident that these so-called minor lapses are really of enormous importance."

"The improvement in driving habits of such individuals cannot be brought about by legislation or by law enforcement, because these violations are more frequently against the rules of courtesy and common sense than against traffic regulations."

"It is clear that safety on the roads demands of both motorists and pedestrians the same degree of courtesy and consideration for others as do business and social contacts."

"I appeal to every motorist in Ontario, even those who are conscientious in observing all regulations, to make a special effort to be more courteous and considerate toward other drivers. After deep study, the departmental experts are forced to the conclusion that highway safety in Ontario today is largely a question of good manners and usefulness."

"Care on the part of the pedestrians will play a major part in any reduction of fatal accident," Mr. McQueen said. "In 1935, out of a total of 669 killed in motor accidents in Ontario, 225 were pedestrians."

LARGE EXTENSION TO GENERAL MOTORS PLANT

Expenditure of half a million is being made by the General Motors company in the enlargement of its St. Catharines plant. Old buildings have been torn down and new modern structures are being substituted. The plant is the former McKinnon plant, one of the largest in the city. With the completion of the new buildings within a month or two, the company proposes to add about 300 men to its staff of workers now numbering nearly 2,000.

Old Buddies To Sail The Briny Once Again

(By "Hobbes")

In the turn of life's wheel, queer things happen to men.

The latest queer trick of life to happen to Grimsby and ex-Grimsby residents is brought about by the great trek of Canadian Veterans to the unveiling of their own memorial at Vimy Ridge, which takes place on the 26th of this month.

To tell this story right I must carry you back through the years.

It was a cold, raw blustery morning in January of 1915. I was recruiting the flower of our young manhood for service overseas for "E" Squadron, 2nd Dragoons (the then third component from that unit). A young whippersnapper, Charles Ian Burdick, was the Lieutenant in charge. On that particular morning a husky young farmer from the brickyard sidewalk entered the orderly room of the 2nd Dragoons (the old Independent Office) and offered his services. His record showed that he had had two or three years experience in the old land with a Hussar outfit. I took him on strength.

That husky young farmer was Charlie Palmer, now plant chief for this district for the Bell Telephone Co. Charlie was a good soldier and knew his K. R. & O.

That spring Lieut. Burdick and the then Corporal Palmer sailed together for France. In the fall of that year they were in the front line straining frantically. After Armistice they both came home, both slightly wounded in action. Burdick with three "pips" up, Captain in you reckon, and Palmer (Continued on page 5)

JULY SESSION OF GRIMSBY COUNCIL

Civic Holiday On August 2nd — Band Asks Assistance — To Fix Rentals of Houses And Price of Lots Owned By Town.

The Grimsby town council met in regular monthly session on Wednesday evening when it disposed of a comparatively light budget of business, adjourning at ten o'clock. Mayor Lewis presided and all members were present with the exception of Councillor Meggs who was out of town.

To Set Rentals and Price of Lots Councillor Dick, chairman of the property committee, informed the council that enquiries had been received as to the rental of houses owned by the town while one party desired to purchase one of the town lots. He desired instructions as to rental to be charged and also price of lots.

After some discussion it was decided that the matter should be dealt with by the property committee and the mayor was authorized to call a meeting of that committee at an early date suitable to all the members to set prices for rentals and lots, and also for the larger acreages and that Mr. Clelland be invited to attend.

Police Report

The police report for the month of June showed five police court cases with five convictions, 42 complaints investigated, 61 transients accommodated, one motor accident, fines of $11.00 and day tax receipts of $75.00.

Considerable discussion was precipitated by a clause in the police report stating that the police office, stairs, halls, etc., were in need of the attention of a caretaker, the question arising as to the jurisdiction of the fire dept., and council in the matter. The question was referred to the Joint Fire and Light committee with a view to arriving at a mutually satisfactory arrangement. (Continued on page 5)

WEST LINCOLN BRANCH SIXTH ANNUAL PICNIC

On Saturday, July 11th, 1936, at 2.00 p.m. the Veterans of the District with their families, will again hold reunion at Grimsby Beach. This Picnic is primarily held for the pleasure of the children of Veterans but it is doubtful if the kiddies derive any more pleasure than the parents who attend with them.

This year the usual sports program will be carried on and there will be a prize for every child taking part. There will be Ice-Cream, Lemonade, and lots of it for the kiddies, and the Branch want them all to be there.

Veterans in the District are again reminded of Church Service to be held on Sunday, July 12th, 1936, at 11.00 a.m. at the Anglican Church, Jordan, which will be in charge of Comrade Rev. Floak. The Parade will form up at Markey's Hall, Jordan, at 10.30 a.m. Dress: Messals and Berets.

Gas Company Reports Increase In Services

By J.O.L.

That the residents of this district are becoming more and more natural gas conscious every year is aptly borne out by some facts and figures handed to The Independent by C. H. Fish, manager of the Grimsby Natural Gas Co.

This company first brought its gas lines to Grimsby in 1925, but business did not develop very rapidly. The index of the kitchen was more or less skeptical of it, and naturally so, for they had been educated through the years in the use of coal and electricity, with the result that up until 1929 the business done by the company was mighty slim. In this year the business office of the company was moved to Grimsby and established in the old Independent building and business began to pick up.

Gradually more and more services were installed for cooking and heat. (Continued on page 5)

ENJOY ANNUAL BUS TOUR

Party of Lincoln Farmers And Friends Return From Educational Tour Through States.

Lincoln Farmers and friends returned home, Sunday night, July 5th and members of the party expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the many interesting features which were observed during their 18th annual tour which covered well over 1700 miles in Western Ontario and the Eastern States in nine days, June 27th to July 5th.

The party consisted of 25, a few of which were residents of Wolland County and which also one of the modern DeLuxe Gray Coach Lines busses which was chartered for the trip.

Special rates at hotels arranged by Agricultural Representative, R. F. Neff, who was in charge of the party made the tour most economical. Many innovations occurred throughout the trip, one being to Lakeshore, N. J., where the Von Hindenburg was being prepared for its return trip to Germany.

Mr. Neff secured a special pass for the party through the land museum of Mr. F. C. Meier, Agriculturalist for the Eastern States, with Head Office at Washington. The party met some of the 51 passengers who were getting ready to embark, the ship leaving at 11.00 o'clock that night.

This wonderful structure was awe inspiring, being moved to a mast in the centre of the aviation field and was being refueled at the time of the visit, namely at 5.30 o'clock in the evening. This master ship is 900 feet in length and most impressive as it is. (Continued on page 4)

RE-UNION HELD AT RUSS HOME

Mrs. Jane Gardner Guest of Honor At Gathering of Gardner And Morton Families — Observes 91st Birthday.

The home of Mr. J. D. Russ, Ridge Road, was the scene of a happy gathering on Wednesday afternoon and evening when the members of the Gardner and Morton families held a reunion, at which the guest of honor was Mrs. Jane Gardner who on June 5th celebrated her 91st birthday.

Tables were laid on the spacious lawn under beautiful broad-spreading trees affording welcome shade on one of the hottest days of the year. They were adorned with attractive flowers while everyone present received a souvenir of the occasion in the form of a carnation made by Mrs. Rich, of Medford, Mass., who was in attendance at the gathering.

Following the delectable supper served, Rev. Harry Noble of Windsor, minister of the Baptist Church at that place, and a nephew of Mrs. Gardner, in a felicitous address, heartily congratulated her on the attainment of another milestone in the remarkably long span of life she has enjoyed and conveyed to her every good wish for a continuance of health and strength during the coming year. He also acknowledged the kind and much appreciated hospitality of Mr. Russ and his daughters in having the reunion in so delightful a spot as was afforded by the beautiful surroundings of the Russ home which offered such a lovely setting for the gathering of the two families represented.

Others who spoke included Mr. J. D. Russ who also extended his congratulations and good wishes to Mrs. Gardner, as did Mr. J. A. McCready of Aylmer, another nephew of Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Augusta Rich of Medford, Mass., Mrs. Roy Malcolm of St. Catharines, and C. S. Bean.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. F. C. DeLong and son Kenneth and daughter, Mrs. W. Duff, St. Catharines; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Blake and daughter, Miss Dorothy, Thorold; Mr. (Continued on page 4)

Fries Egg In Seven Minutes On Grimsby's Main St.

Here's one for Ripley and it's true. At two-thirty this Thursday afternoon the thermometer in front of Flett's barber shop registered 105. Henry Miller, in front of his china shop, broke a hen's egg on the sidewalk and it fried. It took seven minutes to fry, but it fried. "Happy" has several witnesses to this feat.

AWAY BACK WHEN

By FRANK FAIRBORN, JR.

This is a column of solemnity this week. I'm all stiffer and stiffer. The minister is coming to tea tomorrow eve and I'm as jumpy as a grasshopper. I just know it's going to be a terrible session. Every time I open my mouth, I'll put my foot in it, and I have big feet, too. Mildred says I'm just a mess of nervous jerks. If she had ever made as many bad breaks before Padre as I have, she'd be worse than that. Fact is, they would have tossed her away in a mortician's parlor, long ere this.

Speaking of morticians, did you know that there are literally hundreds of individuals and firms, conducting this line of business in Ontario. With an equal, if not greater number of licensed embalmers, assisting in the work. Beautiful funeral homes and chapels are provided for the holding of services, and the finest and most modern equipage supplied.

It is a far cry from the early days of the Fruit Belt, when many a casket was carried to its last resting place by six and eight men, by means of poles placed underneath. Then came the on-cart and later the horse drawn demerit wagon, which was replaced by the black plumed, oiled horse, which was followed by our present day, beautifully paneled smooth running motorized funeral coach. In the early days the steam railways had special funeral coaches and Toronto had a horse-drawn street car hearse, and mourner carrier, and later an electric street car of this type. One large always transportation company in the States, now operates a specially constructed funeral hearse.

In the days of my great-grandfather, when a neighbor passed to the Great Beyond, the local carpenter made the coffin and the local practical nurse prepared the body for burial. In my Grandpa's time, the handling of funerals became a business, and the men engaged therein were known as Undertakers. Then during my father's days, they became Funeral Directors. Today they are called Morticians. What will their title be when my kids grow up?

As I have often remarked this is really a funny old world in which we reside. As I daily see strange things happening all around me, I harken back to the observations once made by John C. Farrell, shoe shop age. He quoth: "I cannot see any difference in a Zulu punching a hole in his nose and hanging a ring in it, and an up-to-date girl punching holes in her ears and hanging pieces of jewelry in them—I cannot see any difference in a Red Indian painting his face in yellow stripes, and our present day girl painting her cheeks in red and brown blotches—I cannot see the difference between a Chinese woman de-forming her feet in bandages, and our modern young women squeezing her feet into the small shoes, with heels three to five inches high, so that she wobbles along like a sparrow on the tips of her toes"—Maybe there are differences, but I am like the Sage, I cannot see them. Think it over.

Back a half century ago one of the largest fraternal organizations in this district was the Loyal Orange Lodge. At that time Grimsby Lodge 1233 was in existence and had a very large membership. On the evening of Wednesday, December 17th, 1890, this lodge held an Orange Supper in the dining room of the Lincoln House. Tickets were 50 cents and close to 300 people sat down to well loaded tables of choice viands. The late Robert O. Konkle, was Worshipful Master and the late George Carr, was Worshipful Secretary. These suppers for many years were the highlights of the winter season. The Glorious Twelfth was celebrated in Grimsby in 1893.

The old Stone Blacksmith Shop, at the Forty Bridge is no more. It has been torn down and the stone used for the construction of large coal bins, by A. Henson and Son. This old shop was built close to 40 years ago by the late Charles Wamidge, and after his death was operated by several other knights of the anvil. Of late years it has not been used and gradually fell to pieces.

Police Clean Out Hoboes' Haven

Chief DeMille and Constable Turner, after keeping a close eye on the "jungle" under the Fulton street bridge for several days, raided this hobo haven on Wednesday morning and gathered in five husky knights of the road. Neighbors in that section of the town have been complaining for some time about their milk supply being stolen ere they arose in the morning, and on Wednesday the local officers swooped down on the ho's open air restaurant in time to catch them with the residents' hotbed food in their possession.

Pioneer Family Held Annual Re-union

A pioneer United Empire Loyalist family of the district, the Green family, held its annual re-union at Victoria Park, Niagara Falls, on Dominion Day, about two hundred descendants being in attendance. Some were present from as far distant as California. The gathering this year was of particular interest, marking the 150th anniversary of the arrival in Canada of Charles Green, who walked all the way from New Jersey in 1786 and whose descendants are known as "The Greens of Lundy's Lane". His brothers, John and Adam Green were among the first settlers at Grimsby and Stony Creek.

A cairn is now being erected to mark the site of the old "red meeting house" on Lundy's Lane on the property given to the Methodists by Charles Green for a church and burying ground.

Mr. George Green, who lives on the original farm at Green's Corner, Lundy's Lane, was elected president. Relatives were present from Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, Stony Creek, Grimsby, Buffalo, Virginia and California, in addition to those from the Niagara district.

Those from this district attending were Mr. Fred Green, Mrs. Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Young, Mr. and Mrs. John MacDougall, all of Abingdon; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Green, Caletoville; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Bromley of Grimsby and Dr. and Mrs. Green of Stony Creek.

GRAPE CUTTINGS TO BE UTILIZED

Plant To Be Built Near St. Catharines — To Extract Unnamed Material From Cellulose Secured From Trimmings.

A plant which is to cost from $150,000 to $200,000 and which will spend from $90,000 to $100,000 a year is to be built near St. Catharines to manufacture something from cellulose extracted from grape trimmings. Just what that something will be is a mystery.

At a meeting of grape growers at Beamsville Friday night, H. R. Peterson, Toronto, said that the firm would be "the first and only one of its kind in the world." The plan which he outlined to the meeting was to sign up the growers from the Niagara river to Hamilton township so that he could buy their grape trimmings and other small fruit tree brush at the rate of 50 cents an acre. The company will head the trimmings to St. Catharines and there run a factory the year around to extract the cellulose and make a product which is already on the market from other sources and is proving to be well in demand. The nature of the article would not be disclosed lest some other company try to use the secret before the new firm can start operations.

Nearly all the growers in the peninsula must be contacted since 12,000 tons of trimmings a year will be needed from the 10,000 acres in the district. Little difficulty has yet been encountered, but the work of contacting is only half finished.

Asked by The Press what the thread was that he had shown S. F. Rum, Beamsville, Mr. Peterson stated that it had merely been an example of what can be made from cellulose. Even door knobs can be made, he stated, but that was no indication of what the final product of his company would be. He said that chemical analysis had revealed that grape trimmings were particularly rich in a certain kind of rare cellulose.

Col. David Bortell, Toronto, stated that the brush would be picked up by his men. These will be specially constructed for this work, and during the winter will be piled behind the barns of the growers. When the grower sends the company a post card saying that his trimmings are piled at the ends of his rows, a crew of men will come in and with the proper equipment will pile trimmings on one of the big wheels. ## Walkerton Citizens Injured In Auto Crash

Mrs. Christina Stubbard and her sister, Verine Hawkshaw, of Walkerton were admitted to Moyer's Nursing Home early Monday morning suffering from severe lacerations and shock when they were driving left the highway a short distance west of the town limits, swerving into a cherry tree on the left hand side of the road, the left side of the car crashing into one of the telephone poles carrying the Toronto-Buffalo cable and snapping it off. The right side of the car was crumpled in and all the glass on that side broken. The car, owned by Mrs. Stubbard, owner of Queen's Hotel, Walkerton, was in charge of Alvin Weber, R. R. 3, Walkerton who has but one hand, the left having been amputated some years ago. His daughter Mary Weber, was sitting next the broken windows but escaped with a shaking up. Elmer McPherson, Walkerton, another passenger in the car, was cut about the head. Mrs. Gordon A. Sinclair and John Kyles attended the injured.

Constables Turner and Darby investigated. Property damage was estimated at $300.

Short Cake

(Rich Biscuit Dough)

Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup butter or other shortening, 1 egg, well beaten, 1/2 cup milk.

Method: Sift together dry ingredients. Work in the shortening well with a pastry cutter. Make a hole in the centre and add the egg and milk which have been beaten together. Stir with a fork. Place half of the dough in a floured pie pan and pat into a disk one-half inch thick. Spread lightly with two tablespoons butter. Now roll out the remaining half of dough and place it on top of the first. Bake at 450 degrees F. for 12 min.

While the shortcake is still warm, split the two layers apart with a fork and spread each with butter. Put lightly crushed fruit (sweetened) between the layers and on top. Cover top with the choicest berries saved for that purpose. Or, if you choose, spread the top with crushed berries, then mound high with whipped cream, and garnish with choice berries.

One Egg Cake

(May be used with apple sauce, bananas or blueberries, too).

One-quarter cup shortening, 1/4 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 1/4 cups flour, 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Method: Cream shortening and sugar. Stir in egg and vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with the milk. Bake in two layers at 350 degrees F. 25 minutes.

Strawberry Shortcake

(German Style)

It's different and "lickin' good"—so rich it's hard to get out of the pan in perfect shape, but its taste makes up for any lack of beauty. It's made in two parts:

For part No. 1—2-3 cup butter or other shortening, 1 egg yolk, 2 tablespoons water, 1 1/2 cups flour.

Method: Cream the shortening, stir in the egg yolk, water and then the flour. Spread the dough over the bottom of the cake pan. The pan should be 2 inches deep. Bake to a golden brown, 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

For part No. 2—2 egg yolks, 3 egg whites, 1 cup sugar.

Method: Beat the egg yolks until lemon colored, add sugar gradually and stir 15 minutes. Fold in the egg whites beaten stiff.

Place one quart of stemmed and washed berries on top of the baked cake, part 1. Four over this mixture part 2. Return to the oven and bake at 375 degrees Fahrenheit for 25 minutes, to a delicate brown.

MONTREAL—Canada is a better place to acquire a sun tan than Ceylon. Mrs. A. C. Bowie of the Indian Island told reporters here. Mrs. Bowie and her husband, tea planters, were in Montreal en route to England. "The tropical sun has a bleaching rather than a tanning effect, I found," Mrs. Bowie explained. "The Canadian sun seems to tan you much more."

PROBLEMS OF EVERY DAY LIFE

By Dr. M. M. Lappin

Another Family Slave

My recent article under the title, "A Slave to the Family," has brought to me a letter from another woman who is in a similar position. She very kindly asks me to convey her sympathy to my previous correspondent and this I gladly do.

This woman's problem is even more acute than that of my former correspondent, for she is a married woman who has a family of her own to look after. Moreover, her home is a considerable distance away from the aged mother who has to be cared for, and that means that she has to leave her own husband and children for prolonged spells to go and care for her aged and helpless mother.

The aged mother is seventy-nine. There are four daughters and two sons, but none of them, save my correspondent, seems to have any sense of responsibility toward their aged mother. The irony of it is that other members of the family live very much closer to hand than my correspondent but are disinclined to assume the responsibility. "I have been away from my own children for nearly ten months, and I feel they need me, but if I give up here my mother will only be sent to an institution," writes my correspondent.

Well, I can thoroughly understand the conflict that must be raging in the mind of my correspondent. No one who has any regard for an aged mother likes to see her enter an institution, yet my correspondent definitely has her duty to her own husband and family. There are instances in which old folks are very happy and are well cared for, and it may be that the solution to my correspondent's problem lies in this direction.

After all, perhaps if it came to that, the other members of the family would equally dislike to see their mother enter an institution and would ther enter an institution and would do something to make it unnecessary. At all events, the old lady is in need of close and constant attention and she would at least get that in some home for the aged. My correspondent could contribute her quota toward the cost of having her mother properly cared for, and the other members of the family could be made to do the same.

I think, if I were in my correspondent's position, I would call a family conference and put the issues clearly before my brothers and sisters. I quietly, but firmly insist that they each bear their share of the responsibility.

One word more, such thoughtless selfishness on the part of others as is here displayed, and the seeming injustice of the whole situation, can very easily embitter our own spirits, and if our own spirits are embittered, then we are incapable of handling the situation as it should be handled. I would advise my correspondent to guard against that and to try and not allow herself to become embittered, then we are incapable of handling the situation as it should be handled. I would advise my correspondent to guard against that and to try and not allow herself to become embittered and possessed of any spirit of hatred.

Gnome-Like Little Man Spent His Life Dusting Books

OTTAWA.—Down in the back vaults that honeycomb the foundation of the parliamentary library lives a gnome-like little man who spends his whole life dusting.

For several months in the year he appears above ground with ladder, pail and three cloths and slowly he circles the great round library whose book shelves line the walls to the height of 60 feet. One by one he lifts and dusts each of the 400,000 volumes off the shelf and moves along. He has been doing this for 20 years or so.

Amedee Choquette is 73 years old. From the shiny crown of his almost bald head to the toes of his hand-worn French-Canadian black boots he is as neat as a new hymn book. He takes pride in this virtue. "See," he will say, something down the blue denim jacket he wears over his white shirt and overalls. "I am clean, me, when I go from here day don't know if I'm cleaner." His great love to work, his great hate dirt.

Orphaned at two, brought up with nine brothers and sisters by a grandmother and three maiden aunts in the lower St. Lawrence village of St. Thomas Montagny, Amedee could manage a plough, when he was 11 and a few years later worked setting ties. "Where do trains go to Manitoba." From there he drifted to the lumber camps but his heart was not in his work. "Too much dirt, too much mud," he says. After seven years servitude to a farmer near Hall, Amedee found a real joy in life, he discovered cellulose, and for more than 25 years he tended furnaces and tidied coal bins for the best families in Ottawa. "I tell de Mrs. I don't go fast but dey know. Dey say 'Amedee dat's fire' class, no one can do like you."

When he first arrived at the library as a general factotum and messenger he was so impressed with the dirt, he sailed in and worked in his off moments to clear away the dust, inches thick, reposing in peace on the tops of valuable tomes.

Then, "when I finish about two year de fire catch," he says sadly.

For about five years after the parliament building fire of 1916, Amedee didn't have much fun. All the stored volumes of newspapers were soaked with water, he took them out and he dried them in stacks, carefully turning pages every day. The auxiliary cleaning staff of 18 women and seven men was under his management.

When everything was in apple-pie order five years later, "de Minist' de decided that three new rooms should be added upstairs. "There was mess more big dan de fire," says Amedee. "Two years after dat after I clean all de book, dey come and put pipe for de electricite." Amedee sighs and shrugs his shoulders.

Now once again he has work down to routine. It takes him 14 months to dust the library when he is alone, but his son, one of eight children, helps him, and they get through it twice a year.

The inmates of the books don't interest Amedee at all. He cannot read. "I know nothing me, but I work, yes, I work," he will say. Stopping by a great pile of old volumes, he will pat them gently on their leather bindings. "You know de French revolt?" he questions. "We have all dat in de book. Dat's a long time ago, eh?"

Fibre Seats For Cars Are Comfortable

NEW YORK—Long, hot automobile rides may sometimes be more comfortable if fibre seats and back panels are placed over the upholstery of the car. Some are of strong mesh fibre, stretched over shallow springs. They are said to be comfortable and they allow the air to circulate. The seat panel, which comes separately, is designed for use in a canoe, also, country cottages. There are bath campers find a package of specially prepared paper dishcloths a convenience. These heavy crepe paper dishcloths are supposed not to tear apart when wet, and to last through several workouts with the dishes. Twelve of them come in an envelope. Housewives consider them serviceable in

For fire-blackened pots and pans towels of similar paper, about 20 inches square, intended for the bathing house at the beach or as part of the camping equipment. Ten of these, packed together, take up little room. Of the same paper, there is a blanket, which is supposed to keep out the damp.

Nazi Ideas On Race Superiority

While there is considerable disagreement in obedience to Nazi racial by German anthropologists, ethnologists and sociologists who ought to know better, there is also some mild disagreement with the doctrine of the Nordic superiority, one of the foundation stones of the Hitler-Göbbels Rosenberg ideology. The result is a great deal of floundering. Andrew B. Fisher performs the useful task in the Journal of Psychology, of showing how foggy is recent German thinking on the subject of race superiority.

A German follower of Hitler always asserts that, whatever anthropologists may say, a race can be defined in the terms of physique and physique — the mind and bodies, modes of thinking and outward looks. The distinction Hans F. K. Günther is followed, his "Rassenkunde des Deutschen Volkes" having been the anthropological gospel of Germany. He becomes vanguard. "The soul of the Nordic is as fair as his body."

When the blue-eyed blonds begin to green themselves on their Nordic souls simply because of their fair skin and to set up within the chosen but misad "Aryans" a still more chosen caste the government thought it time to step in. The Department of Popular Political Enlightenment and Race Consciousness decried the "crimes for blondness" and warned against "racial vanity and family conceit." More stress began to be laid on the mythical Nordic "soul" and the supposed ability, denied to other strains, to think coolly, logically and thoroughly, to dominate, to invent and to organize. But, points out Mr. Fisher, these qualities are precisely the ones assigned by so good a geneticist as Lancelotti to the Jews.

The second commandment of the Nazi gospel is a belief in the immutability of race, no matter what the anthropologists may have proved about racial impurity and the instability of man as a biological species. Heredity is everything, environment nothing, according to this conception. Anthropologists, on the other hand, make it plain that while a Mongol cannot change his skin color and his yellow skin, he can nevertheless become socially a European merely by living with Europeans and learning their ways. If Western negroes were deported to the African jungles where they came they would be as socially miserable as white men. Yet Hitler thinks that he reduces the belief of environmental influence to absurdity when he says that "Americanism ought to be American Indian if there is any truth to this view."

But others realizing the hollowness of Hitler's method of reasoning, fly to Lamarck, in whose doctrine very few biologists believe. Fisher points out the dilemma:

Two compromises are being offered: (a) differentiation between race and species — an artificial differentiation; (b) assumption of the heredity of acquired characteristics — an unproven concept.

A third Nazi tenet is that the "Aryan" branch of the white race is superior to all others in its capacity for civilization, conquest being one of the evidences of superior endowment. The best minds in Germany swallow Hitler's dictum ("Mein Kampf") that "human culture on the European continent is inseparable from the existence of the Aryans," notwithstanding the cultural dominance of the Moors in Europe at a time when the Nordics were unwashed, ignorant barbarians who were regarded as an inferior stock by the Mediterranean peoples.

The Hitler gospel has had repercussions abroad — notably in Japan — with which Germany would like to remain on the friendliest terms because of the supposed Russian menace — with the result that Frick, the Minister of the Interior, had to issue this gloom:

Hostile derogation of foreign races must be avoided in principle. The only demand to be stressed is that increasing influence of foreign blood over Germany be prohibited by all means.

Baker summarizes: While it has been officially declared that derogation of other races must be avoided, the opposite view is maintained with equal strength. On a contradiction is the present status. Lastly, we have the doctrine that culture and race are synonymous and that a culture declines when the races mix — this despite the immense amount of historical and anthropological evidence to the effect that culture flourishes best when the races intermix.

Baker makes the point that German deliberately misinterpret evidence to make it synonymous with racial purity. Karl Pearson, leader of the eugenic movement after Galton, was not concerned with racial or national fitness. But in Germany it is assumed that racial mixtures are bad, despite the fact that there is not a pure human race in existence anywhere and that the Germans themselves are mixtures.

A Sundown Party Is Fun

Writer in Glasgow Herald Describes the Most Popular Method of Entertaining a Large Number of People in Northern Rhodesia.

In Northern Rhodesia the most popular method of entertaining a large number of people is to give an outdoor sundown party. In small, rather isolated communities, where we have to rely on the same people every day for our physical and mental relaxation, a visit from a high official, from an interesting visitor from another colony, or from overseas, or from the Royal Air Force on their yearly cruise is enthusiastically welcomed. Then a hostess will seize the opportunity to despatch by a boy on a bicycle, invitations to her neighbors, and will think contentedly how a fresh party, a different point of view, and new ideas will bring a sparkle to her party and stimulate her friends for days to come. Moreover, it is a country where darkness falls quickly and early, and six o'clock finds us pleasantly relaxed after a game of tennis or golf and ready to occupy the time between sundown and dinner by being comfortably amusing and amused.

Glowing Scene

Grouped in a broken circle around an enormous wood fire, forty or fifty people sit idly talking. In the shelter of a sweeping clump of bamboo stands a table lighted by a shaded oil lamp and spread with decanters of the various drinks and aperitifs. Large jugs of fresh lemon and orange juice are there too, and the light glows softly on rows of glasses and the chromium tops of soda siphons.

The head-boy, in white tunic and red fez, stands with folded arms beside the table, seeing that every one who comes has the drink he prefers. Two or three boys move silently among the guests offering small services — crumpled corn on toast sprinkled with grated cheese, cold brown and silver anchovies, minute sausage rolls, cheese straws, pink prawns garnished with capers and mayonnaise sauce, they hot sausages and miniature anglas on horseback applied with wooden sticks, stuffed eggs, olives, oysters on toast, water thin potatoes, and salted almonds.

Above, the star-brightened sky is deep, dark blue. Tall trees move a little in the warm, scented breeze. At the foot of a thinly wooded slope are the moonlit waters of the lake. Now and again two shadowy figures bearing a great log break through the circle, creating a million sparks as they throw their burden into the blazing depths of the fire.

The murmur of voices is broken by gusts of laughter. There is a pleasing air of informality. No standard of dress is set. Some have come in flannels or wearing frocks from tennis or golf; later arrivals who are dining out afterwards have changed into conventional evening clothes; several women wear trousers and gay shirts, but the majority have on their smartest frocks.

Pleasant Intercourse

The guest of the evening is much feted. A Government official makes encouraging suggestions to a labor-worried farmer, who in turn offers a scotchman to temporarily replace a damaged Government one. A group of members of the fishing club argue amicably over last season's sport. An experienced coffee planter is in deep discussion with the agricultural officer and the postmaster is arranging to dine with a settler to discuss the ailments of a new wireless.

And the women talk as women will. A feeling of good fellowship pervades the party, and one realizes how far these social occasions go to promote friendliness in a community as small that personalities are apt to become over-emphasized.

So we sit happily until one or two people rise reluctantly to take their leave. We say "Good-bye," and the cars with their contented owners disappear down the flinted drive into the starry night.

Oysters Change Sex From Year to Year

OTTAWA.—In the oyster world along the Atlantic coast of North America, the males and females interchange as between the oysters from year to year. In any one year a male may be a female and the next year the female may become a male. This change in sex has been under observation by the Biological Board of Canada for the past six years in connection with one of the oyster beds along the Prince Edward Island coast, and it has been found that the oysters can and do change their sex from year to year. It is the opinion that the oysters tend first to mature as males and later change to females, and that probably each year a few female oysters change to males. During the period, the females increased in greater proportion than the males. In 1931, 65 per cent were males and 35 per cent females, but by 1934, 76 per cent were females and only 23 per cent males. The remainder were doubtful as to sex.

Silenced

For nearly an hour the talkative man had bored his fellow-passengers in the railway carriage with accounts of his dog Caesar.

"Sir," said an old man who had been vainly trying to snatch forty winks, "suppose you took Caesar into a shop and bought him a muzzle, and then asked the assistant to put it on for you and he refused, what would you do?"

"Why," said the talkative man, "put it on myself!"

"Quite so!" was the reply, "and I think all here will agree with me that you would look just well with it on."

Journalism

"Newspaper work, like acting and singing, is perishable. That is the conventional thing to say about it. It is high time someone said that. The acting and singing, it is, therefore, profoundly modest. I count it a high honor to belong to a trade in which good men write each piece, each paragraph and each sentence, as painstakingly and so lovingly as any Addison." — Alexander Woolcott.

"The well-being of a nation depends upon the well-being of its neighbor nations and fair and friendly trade relations with these nations." — Richard E. Byrd.

Ease the Shock of Death Awareness For Your Children

Send Them to Sunday School for Religious Instruction and Don't Avoid Their Questions.

"What is the angel doing, mother?" "But," she added, "I guess some angels would rather go without clothes. Boy angels maybe." "They live in heaven."

"Yes, dear."

"Why don't they like it here?" "They do. Only they like heaven better."

"Heaven's up in the sky. Can we go there? Do airplanes go heaven?" "No, it is too far away."

Just a Word to Children

"Harry's an angel now. Mary said so. But Richard said Harry was dead. What does dead mean?"

Mother said, "You go to sleep for a long time. And when you wake up you are in heaven."

If the boy had been older she would have tried to be more definite, but he is such a little fellow.

"Will I be dead sometime? I want to see heaven."

"Oh, sometime, but Grandpa's never been dead or seen heaven. People stay here a long time usually before they go away."

"Harry went. Where do wings grow, mother?"

"I think you had better get your mind now, dear. You need some sunshine before lunch. Oh, wings grow on shoulders."

She asked me what to do.

"The boy so often brings up the subject of angels and death," she said. "Possibly because he has a little friend. He isn't old enough to reason it out so I never know what to say. About death, I mean."

Answer His Questions

"Who does know?" I reminded her.

"You and I were told it as you have told your son. Today we may have altered the conception of what form the spirit takes after winging away, according to our faith and reason; but even the greatest skeptics cannot deny the beauty of the idea of white-winged angels. Anyway, I think it better for you to answer the child's questions. So many mothers avoid it altogether."

"Why don't you start Sunday School? Religious instruction is a part of my creed about child rearing. Whatever the religion of his parents and grandparents before him, it is best for the child to have instruction in that, I think. He learns, at least, to revere the things he should. As for death, I would not go too deeply into explanations now."

Canadian Oats Check Decline

Like the world area in wheat and barley, the world average under oats has steadily declined since 1929. In the British Empire, however, the trend has been in the opposite direction, the area under oats now standing higher than at any time during the period 1929-35. This is chiefly due, states the Imperial Economic Committee's report on Grain Crops, to the continuous increase in Canada since 1931.

Of the 19,800,000 acres sown to oats in the British Empire in 1934, Canada had 3,750,000 acres. The area sown in foreign countries was 117,270,000 acres, making a world total of 121,020,000 acres, and showing a decline in the world area sown to oats of 36,000,000 acres, compared with 1929. The progressive acreage in Canada is shown by the following figures—12,840,000 acres in 1931; 13,150,000 acres in 1932; 13,530,000 acres in 1933; 13,750,000 acres in 1934; 14,000,000 acres in 1935, and 14,150,000 (provisional estimate) in 1936.

World production in oats has fallen below the level of 1929-30. The United States, as first among the world producers of oats, has been replaced by Russia. In Empire trade Canada retains her place as principal producer and exporter of oats. Indeed, in Empire trade, the Canadian exports of oats and the United Kingdom imports are the principal features of that trade. Normally, the United Kingdom is the largest world importer of oats, but she lost that place in 1934 to Switzerland and Italy for the time being. As already stated, Canada continues to be the chief Empire supply of oats, almost the only supply, it might be said, because the Irish Free State, once an important factor, now sends only very small quantities.

Streamlined Bathtub Arrives To Fit Into the Modern Scheme

Do You Walk Right?

To walk well there is only one rule—walk on one line and not on two. All this talk about the ball of the foot and shoulder carriage is unnecessary, for you could not possibly walk on two lines and this causes them to wobble from side to side. By walking on one line a woman will appear more graceful, and if there is any soft drapery about her costume she will seem almost to float into a room. I know a woman who is short and heavy, who, by walking on one line, gives such an impression of perfect control of her body that she looks pounds lighter while walking than at any other time. This technique gives to a man dignity and directness of movement.—Margery Wilson, Charn.

The streamlined bathtub has arrived. It is announced that will be exhibited for the first time at the national plumbing convention in Buffalo next week. The makers explain that the new style in bathtubs is "designed to harmonize with modern types of construction and architecture."

We take it that the reference is to new styles in building and not to any revolutionary changes in the construction and architecture of the human chassis, which must fit into the new tub. It is a comparatively simple task to alter the general shape and design of bathtubs, but quite another matter to mold the anatomy of some of us to proportions which fit neatly into a streamlined tub. Possibly the manufacturers should adopt as an advertising slogan "Shapely tubs for shapely people," thereby avoiding any complaints from purchasers about misfits.

Incidentally, the makers should be complimented on their commercial candor in announcing this latest contribution to the refinements of civilization, which is proclaimed as "a stimulus to the bathtub business." That is delightfully frank, as everything connected with bathtubs usually is. But it is just a little disappointing. We had hoped that the real purpose behind the streamlining of bathtubs was to promote greater speed in bathing, thus helping to relieve traffic jams in front of bathroom doors both in homes and boarding houses.

However, high-speed bathing has its dangers unless the new tubs are equipped with efficient non-slip devices and hydraulic brakes. It is obvious that the combination of a piece of soap and a streamlining bathtub is likely to produce a degree of acceleration hazardous in the extreme to bathers who are in the habit of stepping on it. Apart from such risks, the new tubs have much to commend them and regular users doubtless will be kept out of the tub each morning ready to meet all comers.

Old Orchard

Myra Jo Closser in the New York Times

Why does the frame that youth has kissed farewell, And left to memory and tranquil task.

See budding tree-tops tamed in a Spring gale With such a stir of foolish hope, you ask?

How can the map that rises in the wood Disturb a being blighted and encumbered?

By half a hundred years of drought and flood, Half-term and thunderbolt, but half-remembered?

In an old orchard many a knotted tree, Long past its bearing when the harvest comes,

Still flowers with a blithe facility When April lifts at Winter in the sun.

So I, to age and impotence resigned, Put forth my verses—rootless as the wind.

GRAPE CUTTINGS TO BE UTILIZED

about three feet high another wheel will be put on top and the two wired together and rolled out. At the factory a field as large as perhaps 20 acres will be necessary to store the trimmings. These will have to be kept treated for the prevention of disease germs and may have to be kept submerged, stated Mr. Peterson.

A vast system of short wave radio sets is to be used to direct the crews of men to pick up their burdens, stated Col. Bottrell. From a central office instructions will be broadcast to each truck.

Trimming from a township will be picked up by men from that township, who will be paid for the use of their trucks. Five hundred men will be required in the spring and 100 the year around.

Growers should have their trimmings ready by May 10 and will be paid within a month of their pick-up. If they have not been taken away by May 10, the farmer may burn them and be paid just the same. No attempt will be made to sell shares in the company to the farmer, although a company will probably be formed later, said Mr. Peterson. There is little chance of the "big interests" buying out the firm, since they will be handling 12,000 tons compared with the whole pulpwood industry in Canada, and will be only a drop in the bucket as far as the industry as a whole is concerned.

The big snowstorm on March 17 may have done some good after all. This party of Mr. Peterson, Col. Bottrell and R. J. Hart, Toronto, were passing through the district and were snowbound at Jordan. They saw piles of brush being burned, and Mr. Bottrell who apparently tries to find uses for seemingly useless things, hit upon the idea of manufacturing something from the pulp.

Now "it is not a proposal or a possibility of accomplishment, but it is an accomplishment," said Mr. Peterson. "Lack of cooperation on the part of the grower is the only thing which can prevent this from being a success."

If enough can be contracted, work on the plant here will be started and all will be in readiness for the manufacture next spring, stated Mr. Peterson.

ENJOY ANNUAL BUS TOUR

It lay resting with its stern on a railway truck on two lines of rails which comprised a circle almost a mile in length.

The first special point of interest was during the stop at St. Thomas at noon on the first day. Agricultural Representative, F. A. Thomas, along with Mr. Duckworth, Mayor of St. Thomas, W. W. Turnbull, president of the Chamber of Commerce, M. F. Birdsell, President of the Kiwanis Club, composed a reception committee at the hotel, and immediately after luncheon while the members of the party were visiting the $35,000 Cold Storage Plant which has been recently put into operation through a local farmers co-operative, they met Premier Mitchell Hepburn who was also showing a visitor through the plant and who invited the party to visit his 1,500 acre farm just north of St. Thomas to see his onion fields which have now become famous due to prize onions which were shown at the C.N.E. and Royal Winter Fair in 1935.

Jack Miner's Bird Sanctuary at Kingsville was visited that evening. "Uncle Jack" as he is called by many, showed the party results of many of his new ideas which are being worked out, one being a field which is hedged with evergreens and hawthorn bushes to attract the Mocking Birds of Carolina. The party also saw Whistling Swans, Wild Geese of different kinds, and doves which perched on their heads and hands, and ate corn which was offered.

The second and third days were through Michigan, Ohio, and West Virginia, the party arriving at Natural Bridge on Monday evening and visiting this wonderful miracle of nature on the morning of Tuesday, June 30th, and the Endless Caverns at Newmarket were also visited at noon of the same day. That evening and the following day and night were spent in Washington. The American Polish Company were hosts to the party at the Continental Hotel for noon luncheon on the 1st of July. A tour was arranged for the party on this our Dominion Day with the following places of interest being visited:

The Lee Family Estate, situated on the grounds of the International Cemetery at Arlington on the outskirts of the city where a picture of the party was taken in front of the monument erected by the Canadian Government in honour of the American soldiers who fought in the Canadian Army during the Great War.

The Lincoln Memorial and Washington Monument were then visited and immediately following this, the party were escorted through the White House by Mr. Meier and Miss Florence Hall who has charge of the extension work for Women in the Eastern States. A picture was then taken by the Federal Photographer of the party on the lawn of the White House. After visiting the Folger-Shakespeare Library, the U.S. Supreme Court Bldg., and the Museum where Col. Lindbergh's aeroplane in which he made the first trip across the Atlantic is placed, the party were entertained at the Canadian Legation which will be occupied shortly by the new Canadian Minister to the U.S. via Sir Herbert Barker.

On Thursday, July 2nd, the party left Washington for a visit to the University of Maryland, 5 miles from the White House on the road to Baltimore and Philadelphia and here, Dr. T. R. Symons, State Director of Agricultural Extension of the University, outlined the work which is being conducted for farmers and farmers wives from this institution and he heartily recommended a tour similar to what our party was taking for their farmers saying that what we see effects our lives in a most marvelous way and expressed the thought that more of their rural people should make visits to parts of the country other than their own.

At Beltsville just a few miles from the University of Maryland, a very profitable hour was spent with J. H. Beatty who is head of this Horticultural Experimental Farm of over 1000 acres and who with Dr. Bowell in charge of vegetable work pointed out many interesting facts and mentioned the new varieties of fruits and vegetables which have been introduced recently, such as Fairfax strawberry, which was originated at that station and the Pritchard, Marglobe and Rutgers Tomatoes, which have all been introduced within the past few years and which are proving to be most valuable for many districts.

From Philadelphia where the party stayed on Thursday night, July 2nd, a trip was made across the state of New Jersey where the famous Seabrook farms were visited and where a special freezing process for handling peas, beans, and other vegetables was studied at first hand. This farm consists of over 5000 acres and some very valuable work is being done by the owner of the farm, Mr. Seabrook and his sons. At Vineland, N.J., where dinner was secured a farm of 8 acres belonging to Mr. B. Koen was visited. This man had his whole area of 8 acres under irrigation and grew 3 crops on almost all his land each year and during the winter produced Chrysanthemums in his greenhouse. About 2 hours was spent at Atlantic City following this, but the day was cool and showery and the visitors were not as numerous as they were the following day, July 4th, the great U.S. National Holiday.

On the morning of July 4th at Downingtown, the party were surprised to see L. M. Schenck and Harper Record standing on the curb as if they had expected us to arrive at that moment. Friendly greetings were exchanged and the party passed along.

The afternoon of the 4th was spent at Harrisburg after having passed through Lancaster County in the morning where the finest crops seen anywhere on the tour were enjoyed as the party crossed this part of the state of Pennsylvania which was settled with a very fine type of Dutch people and it appeared to be the most flourishing country district possible. Celebrations took place during the afternoon of the 4th at Harrisburg and the party enjoyed the fire works from the top of the 30 story Harrisburger Hotel in the evening.

The trip during the last day was made across the picturesque Allegheny Mountains with a picnic lunch in the heart of the flood district along the Seneca River where tremendous damage was done last spring in March and April. Coal mining was evident at many points and at Shamokin it appeared as if mountains of coal had been left to waste but it was pointed out that this was refuse from washing the good coal and was simply a black slag and not worth marketing. The party arrived at St. Catharines late during the evening of July 5th, having enjoyed one of the most educational tours which it has yet been their pleasure to take.

OXFORD GROUP MOVEMENT

Article 1
The First National Assembly North America's first National Assembly of the Oxford Group, conducted in Stockbridge, Mass., was held this year during the first week in June. Plans of many nations were in parade and tremendous audiences of 5,000 and 10,000 were addressed by various group leaders, including the eminent founder of the Movement, Dr. M. D. Buchanan.

In these addresses were revealed the objects and aims of the Oxford Group Movement and in this and succeeding articles The Independent, for the information of its readers, purports giving a resume of the messages brought to the assembly by world leaders in this new Christian army of "life changers."

Spiritual Radio in Every Home, Oxford Goal
"Man's voice over the radio to now a commonplace, why not that of the living God in every home, and business, and industry, and parliament? Why not a spiritual radio-phonograph in every home?" Such was the challenge of Dr. Buchanan at the first American National Assembly of the Oxford Group Movement, an assembly that is to mark the beginning of the Group's first concerted "life changing" drive in the leader's native land.

Outstanding among those who journeyed to Stockbridge the first day of the assembly was a large delegation from Calvary Episcopal Church, New York, whose pastor, the Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., is Dr. Buchanan's American lieutenant.

It was Dr. Buchanan's afternoon. Usually this round-faced, genial, ever-busy leader is content to sit in the background and allow his "change-lings" to conduct the gatherings of this huge "house party". But on the opening day he took the lead and called on his followers to "share" the experience that backed up his message.

Declaring that the days of God's wonders were not passed he asked his hearers to copy, to repeat and to remember for their "quiet times": "Every last man in America, every last place in America, every last situation in America guided by God."

The trans-Atlantic cable was a miracle of science, he said, yet there is a higher science that makes an actuality of the super-national network through which God communicates with man.

"It is the purpose of the Holy Spirit to give information—definite, adequate, accurate," he said. "I like to think of the Holy Spirit not so much as the comforter, but as the informer."

"Quiet Time"
Dr. Buchanan explained the "quiet time" practiced by each individual in the group as the "heart of the Oxford Group". "If you surrender the direction of your life completely to God he will put into your mind what you are to do. You will know you are in touch with God," he continued, "when God puts thoughts into your mind. It is God control, God direction."

"The life changers", whom even have become re-directed toward Christ, were pictured by Frank N. D. Buchanan.

"The change always begins with the individual. The moment we become the right type of a person, we become 'life changers', he said. It is this guidance, this God-control that, in the words of the founder, is the heart of the Oxford movement.

Urges Everyone To Mobilize In Oxford Group Army

Revolution, with all resources under God's guidance, with every effort bent toward changing the world through spiritual awakening, was the dominant theme the second morning.

Lord Addington of the British House of Lords led the "war party" saying: "What we must do today is to mobilize—mobilize ourselves and others. This new Christian army needs every one of us. We must enlist. Everyone knows a soldier by his uniform. Everyone must know Christ's soldiers. Don't keep this a secret, let everyone know it by what you do, and what you say."

"Once in the army, your orders come from the Commander-in-Chief Himself. When you get your orders, work them out together. Our ammunition, our weapons, is the Bible, the instruction book of the Oxford Group."

Say Oxford Group Political Hope
After each period of silent communion, known in the Oxford Group as a "quiet time", periods in which it is asserted, thoughts come directly from God, the speakers submitted their "guidance" to the judgment of the leading fellows in the group at the morning planning session under Dr. Buchanan.

From this checked "guidance" it was decided that God wanted to give the day to a "political meeting."

They expressed the hope that Republicans and Democrats both might be "guided" to avoid empty campaign promises, the spurious system of pledging jobs as campaign rewards and the improper use of money.

"The change must be from self-direction to God direction," said M. Alexander Smith, of Princeton, lawyer and treasurer of the New Jersey Republican State Committee.

"The situation looks almost hopeless for any change in the existing system," Mr. Smith concluded, "but we have here a cure for the evil forces in both Republican and Democratic parties which threaten us with destruction."

James T. Wolf, former Communist organizer for the Fifeshire District in Scotland said, "When I gave myself to communism I believed it was honestly to solve the problems of the people. Now I see in the Oxford Group the greatest redemptive movement in the world."

"I believe honestly the Oxford Group includes the best elements of communism, the best elements of fascism, the best elements of all that stands for conservatism in the world, and in the only revolution for the society in which we live."

Mr. Light, Mr. Laborer said, "We are witnessing today a voluntary movement that reveals in a thousand practical ways the possibility of setting up a Christian economy where social distinction has ceased to exist, where wealth has become the handmaiden of service and where the love of our fellow-man reigns supreme."

In the Oxford Group I was captivated, the primary responsibility rests on the individual man and woman.

Donald G. Ross, Toronto lawyer said, "let us go back to the individual accepting God's orders. You cannot solve the world's problems with man-made plans."

Robert W. Hodgson of Greenville, S.C., regional director of the Remittance Administration for the South-eastern States said, "About a year after I surrendered my life to God I was sent to New Orleans to one of the largest Federal agencies to see that that agency was kept out of politics in Louisiana. Senator Huey Long sent a representative to discuss organization and patronage. I told him about my surrender and that I was planning to make every decision and every appointment under God's guidance. That I would not argue with him about any plan but that I would pray with him about anything we had to decide and would be willing to act on the guidance that came to both of us."

"The next day Senator Long said word that if I got into any trouble by being honest I should let him know. I found that in politics, just as in my head business after I was changed, the best political strategy is to go to

"God is the wisest political boss," Lord Addington, I sit in the House of Lords. ## JULY SESSION OF GRIMSBY COUNCIL

Judgment of the matter.

Band Desires Assistance
A delegation from the Grimsby Band was present with a view to securing the assistance of the council in carrying on the organization. The formation of a committee was suggested to co-operate with the band in promoting the financing of the organization. An amount of $50, it was noted, would finance a series of summer concerts.

Mayor Lewis read a clause from the statutes which stated that Municipal Councils were not permitted to vote funds for band purposes without authorization being obtained by a vote of the citizens.

Various members of the council expressed their desire to co-operate with the band and assist them in every way possible and a resolution was passed that the Industrial Committee meet the Business Men's Association and members of the Band to arrange ways and means of financing band concerts during the summer months.

Fire Letter
A letter from A. E. Wilson & Co., Ltd., of July 24th, regarding insurance against riot and civil commotion was filed.

FAST DRIVERS and SLOW DRIVERS..

This message is addressed to BOTH of YOU

ALL OF US who drive motor cars have our individual preferences as to the speed at which we travel. Some of us like to drive slowly; others like to travel faster. (I am not referring to the "speed fiends" who drive recklessly and dangerously, but to the rank and file of sane, sensible drivers.) There is a wide variation in our preferred speeds.

When the road is clear and open, we have every reasonable right to give these preferences free rein, and travel at any speed which suits us—up to the legal limit. But I believe you will agree that when traffic is heavy, it is neither courteous nor fair to travel faster or slower than the general speed at which the traffic is moving.

At such times, the deliberately slow driver blocks the road for all who are behind him. It becomes irksome and wearying to those who have long trips still ahead of them—and finally induces them to "cut in" or take chances which they would never take under other circumstances.

On the other hand, it is equally discourteous for fast drivers to cut in and out of the traffic lane when traffic is moving at a reasonable speed. It upsets and unnerves the more cautious drivers; increases the accident hazard tremendously; and invariably saves only a very FEW minutes of time in the end.

I appeal to BOTH kinds of drivers to let themselves be governed by the true SPIRIT of Courtesy—to consider the convenience and the safety of fellow-motorists, as well as their rights. Let us show the same courtesy to others on the highway, that we show to visitors in our homes. It will go a long way toward making our highways SAFER, and in making motoring still more pleasant.

Sincerely yours,

B. J. D. Hunter

NARROWLY ESCAPE INJURY WHEN TIRE BLOWS OUT
As the result of a tire blowing out on his car just east of Grimsby Beach on Monday, Bert Gollinger, Toronto, and four passengers in his car, narrowly escaped serious injury when the car overturned. Apparently a rear axle snapped and sent the car, which was westbound, careening along the road for a short distance when the rear tire blew out and after the wheel broke loose, the vehicle rolled over within a couple of feet of the fruit stand belonging to Jay Book. The loose wheel rolled down the Book driveway for some 60 yards and crashed into two bicycles leaning against the barn. The passengers climbed from the wreck with only a bad shaking up.

At 2 a.m. Saturday to handle tourists crossing for Fourth of July holiday, officials state.

Additional officers from regular staff were assigned there again during Saturday to handle an unprecedented volume of traffic. The same action was taken by the immigration department.

Airman Proposed A Hundred Times Before Accepted

Well-Known Trans-Atlantic
Flier to Marry Daughter of State Senator Ashby.

PORT FAIRFIELD, Me., — Clarence D. Chamberlain, trans-Atlantic flier, and airlines operator, is going to take along a brand new bride when he attempts next month to fly through the stratosphere to Europe.

He's going to fly her to Canada "right away" to marry her "before she remembers that she's been refusing to marry me for a lot of long years."

The girl is Miss Louise Ashby, 29, blonde and pretty, a daughter of the State Sen. George F. Ashby. She used to be a stewardess on Chamberlain's air line in Texas. Chamberlain said he had proposed to her "a hundred times" before he arrived here to visit her. She had always said no. He asked her for the 101st time and she said yes.

Miss Jean Ashby who flew here with Chamberlain from New Jersey, divulged the flier's secret. She said Chamberlain and her sister tried to marry last week but were told at the town hall the law required a two-day interval between the granting of a license and the marriage itself.

"But Mr. Chamberlain must be in St. Louis Saturday," Miss Ashby said, "so they think they will fly to Canada before then, get married, and then fly to St. Louis together."

Miss Ashby said that "apparently" Chamberlain's uncertainty about whether there he was divorced from his first wife, Miss Wilma Chamberlain, "has been straightened out." Chamberlain said that he "thought" Mrs. Chamberlain had divorced him, but he was not certain.

The flier and his fiancée visited the Port Fairfield airport, five miles away in Canada, to arrange for refueling of the plane in which they will fly from Newark, N.J. to Europe. Chamberlain hopes to rise far above the Atlantic air disturbances that have balked many ocean flights. Being able to disregard weather, he intends to take a route 600 miles shorter than any yet taken, and to clip 12 hours from the west-coast flight record.

SPORT IDOLS

By KEN EDWARDS

Olympic Games

The first Olympic games were held at Olympia, Athens, Greece, 776 B.C. Romans did not enter the games until after their conquest of Greece.

Therios, several years before he became emperor, was the first celebrated Roman to win a victory — a chariot race.

Lacrosse

Lacrosse originated with the American Indians, the game being played purely for amusement and its exercise value.

The Indians had no money so a thousand players on each side, each carrying two sticks. The uniform consisted of a loincloth and dyed horse's tail.

Squaws took part by switching their husbands on with sticks, urging them on to victory.

Auto Racing

The first auto race in America was on Thanksgiving Day, 1895. The entrants were called motorcycles, not automobiles. The winner, J. F. Duryea, travelled 50 1/2 miles in 10 hours, 25 minutes.

Henry Ford was very much interested in that first American race; he wanted to be present but could not borrow the car for it.

The world's record of 145 miles per hour was held by Bob Burman for years.

That veteran speeder of the road, Ralph De Palma, won more than 200 races.

Swimming

When Julius Caesar was over 50 years old he was shipwrecked. Jumping overboard, he held his sword between his teeth, valuable documents in his left hand; using his right hand he swam to shore. America sent the first women's swimming team to the Olympics in 1920.

When she was only 16 years old Helene Madison of Seattle set six new world records.

Scores Film Propaganda

Films Dealing With Every-Day Affairs Are Suggested

NEW YORK — War and political propaganda has been penetrating the film in increasing quantities of late years, declared Dr. Edgar Dale of Ohio State University in an address before the National Council of Teachers of English here recently.

"We may expect to see more use of the newscasts in political campaigns with consequent falsity," Dr. Dale said.

Declaring that war propaganda found its way to the screen, Dr. Dale said: "In 1931-32 there were twelve films dealing with war, as compared with one dealing with peace in two different newscasts. In 1933 the proportion was seven war films to one peace film."

Dr. Dale then urged the development of realistic, documentary films dealing with everyday activities as an "antidote to the escape movies," which he said were a "narcotic for those who go to the movies to dream but not to think."

Declares England Is Prosperous and People Are Happy

"They Seem a Model of Character," Says J. H.
Woods, Delegate to Press Conference.

NEW YORK — Great Britain is doing very well and the conference of the Empire Press Union, recently concluded in London, was a great success, J. H. Woods, publisher of the Calgary Daily Herald and Canadian delegate to the conference, said upon his return here.

"With respect to cable rates," he said, "we took steps to draw the attention of the Government to the situation with a view to improving the cable companies."

Improve Interchange of News

"The interchange of news among component parts of the Empire was definitely placed in the hands of the secretary, who was charged to get in touch with the general managers of the Canadian Press, Reuters and other executives of news agencies of the Empire to see how the exchange situation could be improved, not only with respect to news coming from and going to Great Britain, but also with regard to the exchange of news throughout the Empire. It was decided such interchange should not await improvement of the cable situation, but should start now and improve as cable facilities improved."

Another point discussed, he said, was the interchange of newspapermen in the Empire. The British section of the Empire Press Union agreed to accept newspapermen from overseas as they are warranted by overseas sections, placing them in London or the provinces for periods of six months to a year. British Dominion and possessions will submit to the section their willingness to reciprocate. There was no intention of accepting simply anyone at all, he said, but a generous readiness to encourage each other.

To Meet in London

The conference of the union next year was set for London, in May or June.

At the conference just concluded about 40 men engaged in serious business for a week. He felt much had been accomplished by the representation of two from each Dominion, six from Great Britain and one each from special possessions.

With respect to the situation in England where with Mrs. Woods he spent a month, he was optimistic.

"What we hear," he said "about England being in business action and good condition appears true. The English are prosperous and happy. There is no grumbling about taxes. In fact," he said, smiling, "they seem a model of character in the rest of us."

From Ottawa to the Coast Canadian Beef In British Market

Written for The Ottawa Journal
by J. R. Owen, of the British Pensions Office, Ottawa.

WINDSOR, Ont., June, 1935.

One's clock seemed out as we passed Parliament Buildings bound for Vancouver, and it made me feel "All at Lloyd's." This was the first real vacation trip in Canada, and one which we had promised ourselves before leaving Britain a little over a year ago. There was a thrill to it, we were to have glimpses of great lakes, to cross mighty rivers which had been nice geographical names to reach up to the stupendous Rockies and to glimpse down to Vancouver. We hoped and prayed that our trusty car would repay our faith in it and carry us worthily through the wonderful that is Canada along the trails planned out on maps that carried its history of the land in their place names.

Carlton Place, Smiths Falls and Kingston dropped behind us and we started to run through the small delightful towns along the St. Lawrence as far as Ottawa. How cool and clean, how green and beautiful wooded these towns are; each one in turn tempted us to stop and go no farther, but our purpose was not to rest and be content but to see a strip of the Dominion and, regretfully, we fitted past. On from Ottawa the following day, through Toronto and out into the rich, lush, agricultural country that stretches through to Windsor.

What a joy there is in place names. The first day, we passed through Lombardy. True, it is only a small township and not a large district packed with the storied towns of northern Italy. On the second day, we passed directly from Melbourne to Odessa, and thence in turn through Paris, which provided us with a cup of tea, and Woodstock, right into London. Their was quite a kick in being able to motor from Paris to London, and the latter city with its Thames, its Westminster and its Piccadilly made us feel thoroughly at home.

On the third day, other Old Country names greeted us but in the most jumbled-up manner possible that made us feel like Alice in Wonderland. One moment we were at Gloucester — in Scotland — then we dropped into Chatham — on the south bank of the Thames — and by some mystical means ran across the wide stream of the Thames into Tilbury. London should have been between Tilbury and Windsor, but it was not; we had left it far behind and we reached the city bearing the royal name in a blaze of sunshine to be met by the impressive skyline of Detroit half-hidden in the thick of factory smoke.

It was appropriate and right that we should have reached Windsor Queen Alexandra's Rose Day, another close and touching link with George Wilkinson, chairman of the retail section of the Calgary Board of Trade, announced the larger retail merchants in the city would not accept the scrip.

Premier Aberhart has announced the Government's intention of carrying out its plans for "prosperity bonds," even if the merchants refuse to co-operate, and Hon. Lucien Maynard, 28-year-old Cabinet Minister in charge of the new finance plan, has announced sufficient merchants have offered to co-operate to make the scheme a success.

the Old Country. Rose Day and Poppy Day are two great institutions which, if they do not link the various parts of the Empire together, do bring home to a person fairly new from Britain how close the links are that tie the vast Dominion to the "little island."

Windsor near the end of the first chapter of our tour. Here we were to leave Canada for a while and see something of the land of the great republic to the south. We had not seen anything like enough of the North American continent, perhaps to justify the impression that least famous in the mind, nevertheless it came spontaneously and without premeditation that Windsor, with its dignified medium-height buildings, with its Alexandra Rose Day, was a not unworthy emblem of the British Empire, whilst the city of Detroit with its towering tower across the river, with its pall of smoke rising from its manifold industries, represented challengingly the restless activity of our enemies over the border.

What impressed us most on this much-travelled route? First of all, the hospitality and warm welcome accorded to us due in very great part, it is pleasant to record and to remember to the fact that our accent bore the tang of the Old Country. We were made welcome because we were obviously pretty new to Canada and every person we met was anxious to be courteous and kind to people from Britain. Secondly, we found ourselves somewhat mystified by the flow of new cars being trucked in the direction we were following and by the compensating stream of new cars meeting us. It was good to see this ebb and flow and better still to note that there were very few lapses from the code of road courtesy.

They're Never Too Old to Marry

OLD FORGE, N.Y. — Charles Jeanette, 59-year-old American Civil War veteran who said on his 59th birthday that he would marry "before I'm 100," has announced plans for his wedding.

He will marry Mrs. Ella Blanche Manning, 54, of Syracuse and Albany, who joined with him in the announcement.

Jeanette said Mrs. Manning was one of nine women who visited him at his invitation after he had received 101 letters following his announcement that he intended to wed again.

It will be Jeanette's third marriage.

Hawthorn trees prefer to grow in open uncultivated soil. Before the arrival of the white man in America when the entire St. Lawrence Valley was covered with dense forests, Hawthorn trees could establish themselves with difficulty, and only in small groups along the water-courses. Today, after three centuries of clearing, large Hawthorn stands are established near the old settlements, such as Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, Rochester, on the sites or close to Indian villages like Caughnawaga, and near the old forts of the Hudson Bay Company.

Canadian Beef In British Market

Shipments of Canadian beef cattle to the United Kingdom markets, while containing some animals of unsuitable weights and types, have been featured during recent weeks by many drafts of very choice quality. The sides from many of these cattle, slaughtered at port of landing, are being shipped to the great Smithfield market at London, where they are sold in competition with beef from other sources of supply, including England and Scotland. Canadian fresh killed beef sides have been making an exceptionally favorable showing, which indicates very clearly that quality is the dominating factor in competition.

The following table of prices, from the official list of the Smithfield market during the last week of May, shows Canadian sides and cuts in an unusually favorable position, being exceeded in price by Scotch sides only. It is interesting, as well, to note the spread in price between fresh killed beef of Canadian and British origin and chilled beef, the product of choice cattle also well marketed, from the great pastoral countries of South America:

SMITHFIELD MARKET (May 28, 1935)

Origin	*Min.	*Max.
Scotch Short Sides.....	$1.20	$1.41
Scotch Long Sides.....	1.31	1.29
English Long Sides.....	1.00	1.18
English Hinds, Fore rib & flank.....	1.35	1.20
Canadian Sides.....	1.00	1.12
Can. Fore rib & flank.....	1.31	1.25
Argentine Hinds, chilled.....	.87	.90
Argentine Fores, chilled.....	.50	.58
(*Converted at $5.00 to the £.)

Canadian cattle are finding additional buyers, and the maintenance of high quality in the bulk of the shipments is a contributing factor. Store cattle-bred in England and Scotland continue active and late May values have contributed to this by strongly reviving pasture lands.

The outlook is promising, despite the fact that prices are slow to rise. The position is reported as being healthy for a gradual improvement, particularly for good animals.

Mr. John Doe Of Main Street

By Howard Vincent O'Brien in the Chicago Daily News

Portrait of a nobody—
He is a clerk in a large office. He has held his present position for 20 years. Three years ago his salary of $40 a week was cut 15 per cent. It has not been restored.

He has lived for years in a Y.M.C.A. hotel. For diversion he walks in the parks, goes to ball games, bowls a little, is a regular follower of the movies, and reads a good deal, getting his books from the public library. His only close relative is a widowed sister, with two children, living in the south. Every week he sends her a money order. He has done this for many years. He also carries $5,000 in life insurance, payable to his sister's children.

Every morning at 8.30 he is at his desk. He changes his coat to a linen duster, puts on electric protectors, and, when the lights are on, an eye shade. He is then ready for work. He goes at it methodically and cheerfully. Once in a great while the end of the day finds some unfinished business on his desk. When that happens he comes back after dinner and dispatches it. He dislikes to have a hangover of yesterday's affairs.

His employers consider him a valuable man—within limits. That is, he is dependable but not brilliant. He handles small details competently, but has neither imagination nor initiative. They feel that he lacks ambition. He himself would agree with this opinion. He has no illusions as to his worth, is not conscious of abler men, and is sincerely grateful for the fact that he has always had employment.

He has a horror of idleness. No beggar ever approached him on the street without getting a dime. Knowing security himself—in a few years he will be retired on a small pension—he has deep sympathy for those who do not know security.

Being genial and friendly, he has a considerable circle of acquaintances—most of the people he knows being inconsequential men like himself. This circle is useful to him. Whenever he is approached by a panhandler he tries to engage the fellow in conversation. He is especially interested in young men. He takes their addresses, if they have any; and then, during his lunch hour, he telephones around among his friends, asking if by any chance there is a job available in their office.

He has a little notebook in which he lists the names of those who are looking for work. He is constantly on the alert for rumors of vacancies or new operations that might mean jobs.

He is a one-man and part-time employment agency. Considering that he has no influence and knows practically no one who has any, his success has been astonishing. During the last year he has found jobs for a dozen or more people.

He has no philosophy about this work. It is just a hobby with him, he says. All he asks of those he has been able to help is that they carry on the work, doing in their turn what they can to help others.

When he talks about this aspect of his life—which is seldom—all he can be persuaded to say is that if every man put in a few minutes every day trying to do a good turn to those who are worse off than himself, this world would probably be better.

Then his faded blue eyes twinkle behind his spectacles and he says shyly: "But I mustn't let myself talk like a preacher. It's really fun, you know. And some day, maybe one of these boys I've placed will amount to something. Then I'll feel as if I amounted to something."

A Twenty-Year Tale

In 1916 the Board of Education dismissed from the service a teacher judged guilty of corporal punishment, eccentric conduct before her class and other violations of the bylaws. Subsequently the woman was committed to a state hospital for the insane, where she spent two years until freed by a court order.

In 1923 another court order directed the Board of Education to reinstate her, with back pay of more than $10,000. She remained in the service until 1924. The Board of Education then dismissed her once more, judging her guilty of unauthorised absence, neglect of duty and insubordination.

But the record did not end there. In the dying hours of the 1924 Legislature a bill was passed by both houses directing the Board of Education to reinstate this twice-dismissed teacher. Governor Lehman has wisely vetoed the bill.—New York Sun. Comments the Peterboro Examiner.

Sees Threat Out of East

Overpopulation Is Held Dangerous to Peace of World By Hon. J. G. Gardiner

TORONTO—One of the greatest tasks for men of Christian faith was to make it possible for men and women to obtain the necessities of life without having to fight for them. Hon. J. G. Gardiner told the laymen of the Toronto conference of the United Church recently.

Reviews Nineties

Mr. Gardiner referred to the overpopulation of eastern countries as one of the great dangers threatening the world.

The federal minister of agriculture reviewed conditions existing in the late 90's and early part of the present century, and stated that that period there was more suffering and unemployment than in being experienced today. Remedies were suggested, but none was put into effect. On government changed in form, yet prosperity came back in the form of a great period of industrial, economic and religious development.

Then in 1912, he said, something seemed to go wrong, and it was later revealed that the depression started when the first letter was written indicating that there were misunderstandings between nations that might result in a world war. The subsequent declaration of war caused a boom in wages and employment, and everyone except the men in the trenches got what they wanted. The war ended and the old difficulties returned.

Similar Situation

Financial people, the church and citizens generally put all their efforts into the re-establishing of prosperity, but something happened again in 1929 and people again began to ask what was wrong with the world.

"Today," said Mr. Gardiner, "there is the same threatening of another great war as existed in the nineties, and the same efforts are being made by some of the nations of the world to bring about peace. Great Britain is leading the way, particularly in this direction."

"I do not believe the human race is going backwards. No man who has read his Bible can be led by men and women who are going up and down the country crying civilization has been a failure, that the church and the religion of the living God have failed. These things are not a failure. Any comparison you like to make will convince you that leadership has been ever onward and upward."

Two Solutions

"If I were to ask the men in this room to choose between the long-drawn-out period, with conferences and a final decision which resulted in peace, such as obtained back in the latter part of the past century, and a sudden conclusion of this thing by rushing into arms, as in 1914, everyone—in fact every person in Canada who has the right to vote—would choose the former rather than the latter solution."

Mr. Gardiner referred to the enormous population of Italy, Germany, India, Japan and other eastern countries. It was not enough to condemn them because they sought other territory for their people, he said.

"We as a people have got to carry into our international relationships the same doctrines and the same views as we have been trying to carry into the building of these two great countries on the North American continent."

Many Peoples

People from all over the world, with different religions, different laws and different literatures had come to make up Canada and the U.S., he pointed out, and today in each country they were living unitedly under one flag and under one set of laws.

"When peoples are hungry and massed together to such an extent that they cannot find life within their territory, the pressure is so great as to drive them to try to get out. Blue-blooded men put under these conditions will fight before starving. One of the greatest tasks before men of Christian faith is to make it possible for men and women to obtain the necessities of life without having to fight for them, and we have to start years before the danger point comes."

Must Start Now

"We have got to start immediately, and we can only solve the problem by using the doctrine that goes right back to the foundation of religion and establishes in the minds of men the idea that, being a common brotherhood, we have a common right to live and a common place in which to live."

STONEY CREEK

Fruit growers and other residents on Barton street are agitating for a permanent top on it from Lake avenue east to Winona. Three years ago the road was widened, culverts and bridges built the full width and ditched constructed. It was learned last week that petition presented to the suburban area commission two years ago for the work to be done on it will be revived and the commission asked again to proceed with this work. It is claimed that 2,000 cars and trucks a day pass over this stretch of road, the census taken last year showing this number.

Street cherries continue in good demand following the purchase by a leading wine company of a quantity of black cherries. A number of growers sold their whole crop for wine. Now a canning company has come into the market and is making contracts for white cherries which usually move off slowly, at four cents a pound. This has not only stiffened the market price for sweet cherries, but is being reflected in the price offered for sour cherries, that are not as heavy a crop as last year. Fruit thieves are in the district again. Charles Best, who lives near the monument, reports several trees of sweet cherries completely stripped of the fruit.

BEAMSVILLE

Complaints of petty thieving in and around the section just northeast of the village are stated to involve the driving of tractor gas tanks and the carrying off of many small farm implements.

Extensive celery planting has been made on two farms in the nearby district this year. On the farms of Leo Martin and S. F. Russ an average of 125,000 heads have already been planted on each.

ing purposes and some furnace installations have been made. The past three years has witnessed a large growth in the number of new users until now there are seven hundred services being supplied over the territory served by the company.

Last spring and fall a large number of services were installed and also two new wells drilled and put into operation in the fields. This spring 30 new services have been put into use and Mr. Rahn expects a like number to be installed this fall, and in this H. C. C. Johnson, office manager of the company, concurs.

W. J. When the pair reached Reid's home the stranger asked if he might have the use of the car to go home to St. Catharines, and promised to return it on Sunday morning. Reid said, "Sure." Neither the car nor the stranger have been seen since. The St. Catharines police have been informed of the incident.

SPORTIGRAPHICALLY SPEAKING::: By Bones

Slowly, but surely, the Grimsby Reapers is mowing down the Old Guard of sportsmen in the Niagara Peninsula, that made hockey the major sport that it now is in the district.

Like hundreds of others of the sporting class, I was greatly shocked on Monday morning to learn of the death in Niagara Falls, on Sunday, of that sterling sportsman, Eugene "Gene" Fraser, for over a quarter of a century one of the greatest and most colorful of hockey players and managers that Canada ever produced.

"Old Gene", as I always called him, right from his kid days, was a brilliant player with a colorfulness all his own that endeared him to his home town fans and made him the target for his enemies from his opponents, yet wherever Gene and his team played the risks would always be packed.

As a hard hitting player manager he won an O.H.A. Intermediate and Senior championship for the Falls. Then turned professional and played and managed the first professional team the Falls ever had. After retiring from active playing he managed and gave to the Cataract City an O.H.A. Junior Championship. At all times he gave of his time, money and ability to foster the great Canadian game in his home city. It was he who sponsored and constructed the present Niagara Falls Arena.

I could write a book on my own experiences and the experiences of the Peach Kings through long years of contact with Gene. I feel his loss keenly. It will be many a long day before this district will again have as keen a sportsman and as lovable and colorful figure as "Old Gene".

May his Soul Rest in Peace.

"Smoke" McBride, C.O.D., has at last got his Peach Kings ball team clicking and on the performance that they turned in last Friday night against the Three Stars from the Beach, should be a hard team to beat in any man's ball yard.

Ham Fox was on the mound for the locals and pitched right smart ball. He had control at all times and gathered nine strike-outs to his average for the evening. Fox received mappy error support from his infield, and kept his outfield loafing throughout the session, as there was only one hit to the outfield during the game that one being a homer with the bases loaded, which accounted for four of the visitors five runs.

During the nine innings the Kings used the willow to smash in a total of 15 runs, which are a lot of tallies for any team.

During the season "Smoke" has been doing a lot of experimenting, but it now looks like he has struck on a winning infield with Canberry on first, "The Dancer" Schwab on second, Zimmerman on short, and Scott on third. Young Bill House, for a left-hander, is doing a right smart job of hind the bat and is improving with every game.

If you want to witness a real ball joint visit the school grounds on Friday night, when the Kings arch enemies, Beamsville will be the visiting team. The eastern lads are playing great ball this season and with the Kings now loping along the championship trail, this should be a real human argument.

PEACH KINGS DEFEAT BEACH

Grimsby Peach Kings took a second fall out of the Beach Three Stars on Monday night, at the arena, by a score of 10-6. "Old Timer" Dargen was on the mound for the city slickers and went the full route in mastery fashion. Tommy Webb, the boy wonder from atop the Thirty Hill, pitched one of his usual good games for the Starline Wanderers, but pitching alone won't win ball games. Everything was peaceful and quiet. Rocky Russ had his Sunday smile working and Artie Clarke was not in an argumentative mood.

PEACH QUEENS VICTORS OVER DUNDAS GIRLS

This is great weather for Marv Southward, the Ice Man, its also great baseball weather and the Peach Queens along with the Peach Kings are taking full advantage of it. Tuesday eve. at the local ball yard they added another scalp to their belts, and it was a sweet scalp to pick off too.

The team to lose its topknock was none other than Dundas Nationals, last year's champions of the Hamilton and District league and the most feared team in the present eight team group, but they meant nothing to the high-spirited, fast traveling Queens, who despite a couple of bad bobbins and some sloppy play in the early frames, came through on the bit in the final session to cap the old game by an 11-5 score.

With air-tight pitching from that streamlined beauty from the hill top village of Smithville, Ann Copeland, who was well handled by her regular catcher, Marion Lucy, back in the game after recent illness, the team fielded smartly and used the old battery to great advantage. In justice to Christopher the Dundas slab artist, let it be said that she is no set-up. For four frames she had the Queens under her kauchion and struck out six batters. Copeland struck out seven.

Back to the baseball were after three years absence came two of the old original Peach Queens in the persons of Helen Duncan, the Hello Girl, from Winona, at third base and Margaret Phillips "The Spearmint Kid", at second. They appeared to be a little rusty at the start but soon came to their work. This pair backed up by Neale at first and "Happy" Homes at short, look like the cream of the infield crews in this league. In the field they know all the questions and the answers too, and at bat they are murderers.

The Beane sisters and Patsy Smith are a formidable trio of outer gardeners both in the field and at bat and will make many a pitcher wither be-

OLD BUDDIES TO RAIL THE BRINY ONCE AGAIN

came home a full Sergeant with a Military Medal hanging on his breast. That's that.

Eighteen long years have passed since the "cesson fire" sounded over Flander's Fields and the two men have seen very little of one another. Burland has been a resident and businessman in Hamilton, Bermuda. Palmer has become a valued employee of his company in Grimsby and continued in military life now being a Lieutenant in the 98th Welland Batt.

Palmer is going to Vinay, sailing from Montreal on Thursday of next week on the Ascania. Word reached Grimsby on Wednesday that Burland will be back in Grimsby the end of this week on his way to Vinay. He too, his letter states to H. C. C. Johnson, will sail from Montreal on the Ascania.

Thus by the turn of life's wheel two old buddies will once again sail the great Atlantic together and visit once again the scenes of their many trials and tribulations on the battlefields.

On Tuesday night of this week the employees of the Bell Co. held a farewell party in their rest rooms at the office in honor of Mr. Palmer and presented him with a lovely and serviceable pair of travelling slippers and cane.

The Independent joins with the many friends of these two gallant "Old Crocks" in congratulating them upon being lucky enough to be together on this great pilgrimage and wishing them bon voyage.

A mixed rink from Grimsby composed of George Warner, Margaret Allen, Brock Snyder and Mary Phillips took part in the tournament at Klen on Monday night. Out of twenty rinks taking part, Grimsby representatives brought back second prize.

For the season is over. The reserve force of the Queens is on a par with the regulars.

All told it looks like Mons. Francois Haret, the broad pebbled wizard, has rounded out the team that will cap the old golfers in this league. Queens have five straight wins to their credit now with plenty more to come.
